

Effective Communication with Parents: Navigating IEP Meetings and Communication Throughout the Year*

Presented by Judith Petruzzi, PSEA Education Services Division

According to research, building relationships with parents is the most effective way to support your classroom and school community, raise student achievement and increase positive behavior in the classroom. This session reviews the research behind effective communication and building relationships with parents. Specificity will be given to creating working relationships among IEP team members and communicating clearly throughout the special education process, especially with parents.

Note: This workshop is designed for those with teaching certificates.
