The Advocates for Children and Education (ACE) training equips PSEA members with the necessary tools they need to establish and sustain relationships with legislators and how to effectively influence public education policy. The training aims to educate members on lobbying strategies, emphasizing the significance of building relationships, understanding the impact of the ACE program, and equipping them with the skills needed to run effective meetings with legislators. Upon completion of the training, participants will be ACEs and join PSEA's grassroots advocacy network.
